FINK AND GOULD IN FAVOR OF CO-OPERATION.

New York, March 13.-Henry Fink chairman of the board of directors of the Norfolk & Western railroad, who has been in active ralified service for 5 years, and George J. Gould added their voices yesterday to those who have spok en for co-operation between the rall reads, the government and the public. Mr. Fink said:

reads, the government and the public. Mr. Fink said:

"The thing has got to be done through making the people see the facts in the case. The difficulty has been heretofore that the railroad men have been too busy to explain the complicated railroad problem to the people on the one hand, and the people have been too busy to study it for themselves, on the other hand.

"There are, however, two all important things in this matter of co-operation. Congress must not only pass wise laws, but the railroads must obey them both in letter and spirit, without attempting at evasion, and must co-operate in their coforcement. That is the only way in which co-operation can be put on a satisfactory basis between the railroads and the government."

George J. Gould, in his statement, said:

"The interests of the railroads and those of the public are identical, and they always have been so. Sometimes, the public and sometimes the railroads fail to realize the fact, but it is nevertheless, true that their interests are one and the same.

"If the railroads are making money, the public is pretty sure to be making money, too, while, on the other hand, if the railroads are not prospering, the public is pretty sure to be making money, the public is pretty sure to be making money, the public is pretty sure to be making money, the public is pretty sure to be making money.

A SECOND HELLEN RELLER.

Chicago, March Li—A dispatch to the Tribune from Jacksonville, Ill., says: Physicians of this city were handicapped vesterday in diagnosing the allment of Emma Julick, the Il-year-old deaf, dumb and blind ward of the state, now in the state school for the blind here. Emma, whose only means of conversation are her fingers, became suddenly ill and as her temperature rose for strength failed her. It was with the greatest difficulty that she was finally able to tell with her fingers, a word or two at a time of the pain she suffered. Finally it was decided that the child had appendict and preparations have been made for an operation.

The girl often has been called a second "Helen Keller" on account of the many wonderful things she has been able to do in spite of her affiction. A special typewriter, with raised keys was made for her, and with this, she has written many short stories.

The legislature has made several apprepriations for her care.

LAND FRAUD DISCLOSURES

Hinted From Boise That Idaho Ones Are More Gigantic Than Those of Oregon or Montana.

TO BE SIFTED TO THE BOTTOM

Guilty Parties to be Brought to Trial And Proceedings to Secure Repossession of Lands.

Portland, Or., March 12 .- A special to the Oregonian from Lewiston, Ida., Hints from Boise as to startling land fraud disclosures at Lewiston tend to confirm reports from authentic sources that the government has for a year considered the land frauds in Idaho more gigantic than in either Oregon. Montana or Washington, and that it is the intention of the government to sift them to the bottom, bring the guilty ones to trial and then bring re-entrance proceedings, after convictions, to secure repossession of the lands fraudulently secured from the United States. This atter step will mean great financia loss and perhaps absolute ruin to private individuals and banking institutions which are or have been, it is asserted, directly or indirectly connected with the handling or ownership of lands said to have been fraudulently is known that the few indictments secured at Moscow at the last two terms of court are but a beginning. There are, it is said, other indictments to follow, which are to bring into the pale of the law men high in all walks of life and whose names so far have not been even suggested. The steps to reciaim lands fraudulently secured. to reclaim lands fraudulently secured to rectaim lands fraudulently secured from the government will mean losses of thousands of dollars to those people who have advanced large sums of money on Idaho lands secured from the government, against which is a cloud because of their alleged unlawful acquirement in the first place.

It is asserted that evidence has been secured which, when presented in court will prove astonishing to the general public. It is the avowed purpose of the government to use the evidence as a basis on which to commence its reentrance proceedings. Of course other evidence will also be used. It is also evidence will also be used. It is also alleged that the government will attempt to show by some of the indictments which it expects to secure that in running the lines for some of that in running the lines for some of the gigantic irrigation projects the lines were incorrectly run with the al-leged purpose of securing lands other than originally intended to be placed upon the ditch. These cases, it is said, if proven, and the government thinks they will be, will spell rulnation to many a settler who has spent his all in the purchase of irrigation acreage.

SPEAKER JOSEPH

Rep. Critchlow Creates a Stir in The House at Morning Session.

CHARGES DISPICABLE WORK.

Accuses Him of Conduct "Which Should Make Any Man Blush With Shame"-An Incident.

With face flushing with indignation. Representative Critchlow of Salt Lake this morning charged Speaker Joseph with conduct which, he said, should make any man blush with shame. On a question of personal privilege Mr. Critchlow arose, and said that he had been told by a member of the house before the session opened, that Joseph had gone to him and asked him not to vote to take up the Galveston bills today, as he (Joseph) had something to hand out after the session. Mr. Critchlow said that he had been given pledges of sufficient votes to take the measures referred to from the table, and he charged the speaker with using despicable methods to prevent such action being taken, and with offering the members a consideration to vote against taking the bills from the table. At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Critchlow moved that the Galveston bills be taken up from the table for consideration, and up from the table for consideration, and upon being seconded, the speaker asked if there were any further remarks, and put the motion, declaring upon the viva-voce vote that the motion had lost.

Jensen sprang to his feet and said.

"Are we in Russia, or are we in the United States?"

Kuchler was up in a second and asked if this thing of some members arising at every instance possible and insulting the speaker was to be allowed and every session of the house.

Critchlow gave notice that he appealed from the decision of the chair, but Speaker Joseph said he would not entertain the appeal, as ample time had been given to call for division which was not done.

Critchlow insisted on being heard on the matter and the speaker ordered him to sit down. Critchlow said fle would sit down when he got ready. The speaker then instructed the sergeant-at-arms to compel Mr. Critchlow to take his seat. Critchlow finally complied, but the sentiment against complied, but the sentiment against czarism and in the interest of fair play was plainly in favor of the vanquished member.

At the time of the charges Speaker Joseph made no reply to Mr. Critchlow, but he afterwards said that he had made no such remark as was imputed to him, saying, however, that he had said that if the Galveston bills were taken up and the Agricultural college bill was to come into the house today it would keep the session going forever, and requested one of the members to vote not to take the bills up on that account. 'As far as offering to hand something to the members for their vote on this matter. I have nothing to hand to them, and never made any hand to them, and never made any such remark."

As tomorrow is the last day of the session, legally, the Gaiveston bills will in all probability continue to lie on the table indefinitely after today's round, unless heroic measures are resorted to by the advocates of the measures for their rejuvenation.

JOSEPH'S BILL KILLED. Another lively discussion took place over the consideration of H. B. 303, by Joseph, prohibiting professors in educational institutions from displaying pernicious activity in politics. The com-mittee report on the bill was unfavor-able, recommending that it do not pass. A substitute motion was made that the report be rejected and the bill placed on the calendar. Joseph charged some of the committee members with having experienced a change of heart on this bill, as he had been given assurances that the report would be favorable. He said the need for such a law was imperative, in view of the experience of the present legislature.

Jensen said the measure was un-Jensen said the measure was unconstitutional, inconsistent and unAmerican, and that the legislature had no right to say what any professor should or should not do.

Bower said he had had no change of heart, or head either, on this bill and said he would not support it.

Jackson favored placing the measure on the calendar so that the house might vote on its merits or demerits.

Jackson lavored placing the measure on the calendar so that the house might vote on its merits or demerits. Mills took the same view, saying that he had amendments enough up his sleeve to make a good bill out of it. Westphal and Pedersen favored the bill, and Clerg opposed it, saying it was class legislation, and if such a bill was to be enacted it should include railroad lobbyists, bank presidents and all others who had had a part in lobbying on measures during this session. Thompson said there was a law on the subject already, and no need existed for any special law. Critchlow, Parry, Benson and McMillan also opposed the bill on similar grounds. Jensen claimed that the object of this measure was to play to the grandstand. "I like to talk to the grandstand myself," said Jensen, "but I hope I shall never come to the point

I hope I shall never come to the point where I shall try to legislate to the grandstand."

The report of the committee was finally adopted, killing the bill. BILLS PASSED.

memory of those who knew that such a position existed, runneth not to the contrary.

Colonel William has held undisputed possession of a post as "statistical agent for Utah of the department of agriculture," for nearly a decade. His paper was at one time a Republican organ, but now it is pretty well known in Washington as in Utah as something else. What that something else is need not be entered into at length here, except enough to explain that a resignation from a post held tenaciously for 20 years would not be expected to come in a voluntary fushion, and with entire free will.

Senator George Sutherland stated this morning when asked about the resignation, that he had been expecting it for some time, but that he did not care to discuss it. The position, he said, pays 50 per month, and the duties amount to something, as its holder has to furnish the department with certain specified reports. A new appointee is expected to be announced in the near future.

NO MORE WOOL LOADING.

Shippers Will Have to Provide Men This Season.

It is announced today, that from and after this date, the railroads will no longer send out agents to hunt up and supervise wool shipments in transmissouri territory. Growers must do their own shipping the same as any other class of shippers. The matter was brought up and discussed at the last meeting of the western trunk lines, when it was agreed that waiting on the wool men as had been the custom, was really a discrimination in their favor as against other shippers, and there was no reason why this policy should obtain any more than that special favors should be extended in other lines of freights. However, action at the time was deferred until recently, when in accordance with 3 a general understanding, western agents were notified of the change of policy.

form system of lighting the business districts.

A patition is already before the city council by the firm mentioned and others, asking for the privilege of installing cluster lights on the east side of Main from South Temple to First South, but the petition has been held up pending a decision as to what kind of poles shall be used and what distance they shall be set apart. It was the general sentiment of the committee and others present today that 39 feet apart for poles, as proposed by the petitioners, would be entirely too close, and that it would be a hard matter to induce property owners on the lower part of the street to follow such a plan. It was started by Mr. Mendenhall and also by Councilman Carter that the Utah Light and Rallway company intends to set trolley poles on the side of the street. Ill feet apart that the Utah Light and Haliway company intends to set trolley poles on the side of the street, 113 feet apart, and will place thereon clusters of four lights each, without cost to the city or property owners, with the exception of payment for the power used.

City Engineer Kelsey's plan is to place intermediate poles between trolly poles, with clusters of five lights on each. That would give the poles a unifor distance of 59 feet apart the entire length of the street.
